while painful, that would at least force us to see drugs for what they are: a commodity, adhering strictly to the rule of supply and demand.

doctors put the lives of women at risk and went ahead with the sterilization using light from torches and mobile phones